I made a set of felt numbers for the cloth calendars below and pinned them on each month as it came.

January

--cut paper snowflakes or make paper snowmen by having the children look for 3 different size circles to trace--such as glasses & bowls--cut out the circles and paste onto black paper and decorate; alternatively, trace a snowman cookie cutter

--make macaroon, ice cream (3 scoops on a cone), cookie, popcorn ball, or marshmallow snowmen

--go sledding or ice skating, or take an outing/travel to play in the snow; discuss safety in cold

--compare liquid water, solid water (ice), and water vapor (steam is close, or your breath in cold air)

--make snow or ice sculptures or molds, or an ice cube igloo

--draw pictures with white chalk or white pencil on black paper (a snowman in a snowstorm?)

--get a book of art that shows art done in black and white, or make your own

--song: "Ebony and Ivory" Paul McCartney and Stevie Wonder, find online

--Baby Animals Black and White by Phyllis Limbacher Tildes, Big Cat, Little Cat by Elisha Cooper, etc

--you can make party hats with wrapping paper . . . make a cone; or like the newspaper hats we used to make . . . cut a 12"x16" paper, fold it to 12"x8". Fold & unfold it to find center & fold corners down (like for paper airplanes); double fold bottom up on either side & tape--decorate, if you like.

New Year's Day—Jan 1

--make a door and attach it to the center of a horizontal paper; draw (or print from internet) an old man for the old year on the left side, draw a baby for the new year on the right side; close the door on the old year, by opening the door to the new year attach door on dotted line, so you can close it on the old man/year, and it shows the baby/new year

--talk about how every year, every week, every day is a new start, a chance to try again

--what are your goals, what do you want to accomplish? You might draw a picture of it. Talk about how you could accomplish it . . . how can you help others accomplish their goals?

--put pictures of special days, on a calendar of the new year

--favorite food New Year buffet

--movies: "Frozen", "The Snow Queen" (2012 animated adventure family comedy) & "Snow Queen" (2002 TV Hallmark movie based on Hans Christian Anderson), various versions of "Snow White", "North to Alaska", "Frosty the Snowman", "Happy Feet", "101 Dalmatians", "Racing Stripes", "King Fu Panda" . . .

(then the cycle starts over)

February

- Fold red or pink paper. Draw half a heart on the folded edge and cut it out while still folded. When you open the heart (physically and figuratively) you can share it with others, with good kind words written or stamped on it, or draw loving symbols, or decorate it with stickers or other scrapbooking type materials. Note that when you cut it out and open it, both sides are the same, like a mirror image of each other. That is symmetry.
- Other than cookie hearts you can cut heart shaped sandwiches, make a heart shaped pizza or other food.
- Don't get detailed about the circulatory system, just look at a picture or diagram that shows the heart and how the blood takes food and oxygen/air to all parts of the body, and takes away the waste.
- shadow play: make shadow figures, silhouettes, shadow theatricals/puppetry

Groundhog Day—Feb 2

--For Groundhog Day: make pigs in blankets with hot dogs or little smokies or other sausages. For the blanket you can use biscuit or bread dough (cook the meat in the dough, in the oven), a crepe or a pancake can wrap precooked meat . . . or, have sausage rolls (ground hog), or similar. The blanket symbolizes that the Groundhog sees more winter coming, so wraps up in his blanket to finish his sleep. Alternatively, when you find out about Groundhogs, you can eat what Groundhogs like to eat: leaves, seeds/nuts, cress, violets (beside bark, roots, saplings, garden & field produce, snails & insects)

Huff and Puff on Groundhog Day by Jean Warren; preschool & primary grades, inclu. Activities

Groundhog Day by Lisa M. Herrington (Rookie Read-About-Holidays)

My Favorite Animal: Groundhogs by Victoria Marcos

"Groundhog Day" (1993) Bill Murray

Winter Olympics—2022, & every 4th year afterward

- create your own mini Olympics
- Feb 4-20 2022 Beijing China XXIV Olympic Winter Games
- "Cool Runnings" 1993 Disney family comedy, bobsledding
- go skiing, sledding, ice skating

Valentine's Day—Feb 14

--make your own Valentine cards, bouquet, chocolates or other candy/treats; or heart shaped/healthy foods
--"Seven Brides for Seven Brothers", "Gnomeo & Juliet", "Swan Princess", "Tangled", "Beauty and the Beast" (various versions in literature and film), "Cinderella" (various versions in literature and film",

Presidents' Day—3rd Monday (Lincoln's Bday Feb 12; Washington's Bday Feb 22)

--You can find favorite foods of each president online. One site I like is Food Timeline, which has more than just favorite foods of the presidents: <http://www.foodtimeline.org/presidents.html>
--check out which presidents are on which coins and bills (money men); you might make rubbings from coins
--"Yankee Doodle", "America the Beautiful"

--A Picture Book of George Washington by David A. Adler
--George Washington Our First President by Cornelius Van
--Biography The Story of George Washington for Kids: Story of the American president for children <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=hAajmjibego>

--The Whole Megillah by Shoshana Silberman (English and Hebrew)
--"Queen Esther" full movie in animation, 13 min (Christian production)
<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=BUdhJhRr3wI>
--"Fiddler on the Roof"

(Mardi Gras—day before Ash Wed/Lent; 47 days before Easter)—also called Shrove Tuesday

--For Mardi Gras you can make masks, your own little parade, eat jambalaya ... other foods:
<https://www.forkly.com/food/easy-mardi-gras-themed-recipes-10-traditional-party-foods/>
Mardi Gras is also known as Shrove Tuesday, and is celebrated in England by eating pancakes. In several other countries it is celebrated with various kinds of donut-like desserts
--"The Princess and the Frog" 2009 Disney animated musical comedy

Leap Year—Feb 29, 2020, & every 4th year afterward

--"Leapin' Lizards!" Little Orphan Annie used to say in her comic strip
--other leaping creatures: fish, frogs, kangaroo rat, grass hopper, bharal, antelope . . . 10 Lords were leaping on the 10th day of Christmas . . . see also:
https://news.nationalgeographic.com/2016/02/160228-pictures-leap-year-animals-february/#/01_NationalGeographic_1297095.jpg
--play Leap Frog
--foods: fish; "Frog Eye Salad" (made with large tapioca)

March

--“In like a lion, out like a lamb” is an old saying about March referring to the windy weather that occurs with the change of the season. March is named for Mars, Roman god of war, and probably the beginning of the year for war-making/marching off to war; Jesus Christ was called “the Lamb of God”, “the Prince of Peace”.

--you could learn about lions and lambs, and compare them in real life, and what they symbolize in different cultures

--you can watch online: “Lambert the Sheepish Lion” (1952), Silly Symphony animated series; likewise, you can find Warner Brothers Looney Tunes “Forward March Hare” (1953) Bugs Bunny accidentally ends up in the army

--you could watch “March of the Penguins”: the end of the Antarctic summer is in March . . . not every March has to be about war!

--“March Hare” and “Mad Hatter” were also old sayings—referring to crazy behavior (the old chemicals used to make hats were not good for human contact), and were personified in “Alice in Wonderland” at the tea party. You could have a “tea” party with March (windblown) Hair, or go mad/crazy with hats. Watch Disney’s animated “Alice in Wonderland”.

--you might like to make and/or fly kites when there is just the right amount of wind for success, sing “Let’s go fly a kite”

--along with learning about inventions and inventors, you can gather various items to build your own invention, or invent a new kind of food, or a new way of doing things more efficiently

--look at a diagram of the lungs and respiratory system; practice breathing deeply, holding your breath, compare your breathing at rest and after running; blow out a candle, blow bubbles and pinwheels; flutter crepe paper streamers in the wind or with a fan; compare a handheld fan to an electric one . . . Lots of ideas for experimenting/observing air, the atmosphere, and wind. You can find extreme weather videos at the library /online Books: The Wind Blew by Pat Hutchins (humor), I Can Read About Weather by Robyn Supraner , “Winnie the Pooh and the Blustery Day” . . .

--have an “Eat a Rainbow” luncheon . . . with foods of all different colors (tacos or fruit salad work nicely)

Daylight Savings (begins)—2nd Sun March

- You can make a clock pizza, pancake--any cake or pie . . .
- Use an old clock, or make one with hands attached with a brad to explore time . . . count the seconds in a minute, count backward with the microwave timer . . . try to hold your breath or hop as you count the seconds/minutes . . .
- Once Upon a Daylight Saving Time by R.E. Skibiski

Mark 3, 6, 9, and 12 on the clock face first, then fill in the other numbers

1st Day of Spring/Spring Equinox—Mar 20, 21, or 22

- Foods: spring rolls, spring water, spring mix salad greens with spring onions; asparagus, rhubarb dessert
- Decorate stemware to look like tulips (cut ovals and attach as petals) . . . you can make a spring bouquet by cutting paper or foam tulips and other spring flowers and attaching to bamboo skewers . . . or you may make a fruit or vegetable bouquet
- great time for gardening . . . plan the garden, plant the early vegetables, play Seed Bingo

--equinox is when the days and nights are an equal number of hours each day, or at least for a day/night. Take a look at a diagram of the earth, sun, and moon, and where the spring and fall equinoxes are. You might also look at where the summer and winter solstices are (summer solstice: longest day; winter solstice: shortest day of the year). Note that when the earth makes it all the way around the sun, that's a year. When the earth spins one full turn, that's a day. When the moon goes all the way around the earth (more or less), that is a month
